Brand guide

THE IDEA

Human. Stubborn. Still going.

Signals end

A modern survival trail about a worn-out family leaving account-controlled life for a place they can own. The destination is analog. The reason to care is human.

Rounded, irregular lettering brings warmth and mischief. Dark scenery, worn machines and candid faces bring the stakes. Keep those two forces together.

Recognizable

Let the title carry the identity. Keep the exact approved composition for the main game title.

Human

Use moments of vigilance, curiosity, skepticism and wonder. Avoid the posed, perfect family.

Restrained

The setting already tells the story. Give the lettering room; use the sage accent sparingly.

One family of marks.

PRIMARY / APPROVED STACKED TITLE

SECONDARY / TYPESET HORIZONTAL SIGNATURE

COMPACT / SE

Stacked: 180 px minimum width. Leave at least one dot-height of clear space.

Horizontal: 160 px minimum. A typeset companion for narrow spaces.

Keep its character.

DARK ON LIGHT

Use the supplied variants. Preserve the proportions, counters and open space. Avoid outlines, bevels, shadows, extra distressing and literal digital symbols.

ONE-COLOR REVERSED

App icon: opaque square master, 1024 × 1024. The platform applies the corner mask. The mark remains inside the central safe area.

Symbol: 24 px minimum. Use one color below 32 px; test it on the actual background.

The game name is Signals End. No apostrophe.

Big personality. Easy reading.

ATKINSON HYPERLEGIBLE NEXT

The road still needs reading.

The van starts on the third try. Jack calls that a warranty. You have two days, three meals and a map nobody can update behind your back.

Small moments of possibility

Paper on Ink: 12.8:1. Ink on Sage: 6.1:1. Use dark text on the sage primary button. Pair danger color with an explicit label or icon; color alone is never the instruction.

An adventure. Not an advertisement.

VIGILANCE

Sarah checks the road. Let the eye line carry the tension.

People: imperfect framing, one or two characters, different expressions and eye lines. No repeated whole-family poses. No stock-photo smiles.

WONDER

The children see the landscape. Make space for discovery.

KNOW-HOW

A specific repair. One tool doing a believable job.

Machines: worn, comprehensible and repairable. Limit tools and props. Preserve hands, faces and the focal action when cropping for a phone.

A little nerve. A little restraint.

“A van too old to snitch.”

Dry, brief and earned. The family gets to be funny; their hardship is never the punchline. Let the joke reveal a person or a choice.

INVITATION

Some things still belong to you.

STAKES

A home. A deed. Nobody's permission.

ATTITUDE

You've accepted enough terms.

Title motion: 850 ms fade and a 16 px upward settle. Ease out, then hold. The exported 1280 × 720 MP4 is 2.5 seconds, 24 fps, silent. The web title uses the same restrained behavior.

Reduced motion: show the final composition immediately. Keep all controls usable. Avoid mandatory animation, flashing, synthetic scanlines and constant looping.

Ready to take with you.

1920 × 1080

Included: SVG masters and transparent PNGs, square app icon exports, TTF and WOFF2 fonts, color tokens, editable HTML layouts, this guide, title motion, original approved concept and selected game artwork.

1080 × 1920

1080 × 1080

Use covers as brand artwork. Store listings that require gameplay still need live screenshots. Export size does not increase the source illustration's detail. For layout edits, serve the kit folder locally and open `templates/layouts.html`.

Typeface provenance. Signals End Display is a renamed, modified derivative of Fraunces by the Fraunces Project Authors. Atkinson Hyperlegible Next is included unmodified, with static instances for convenient desktop use. Both use the SIL Open Font License 1.1; the full licenses and pinned source revision are included.

Artwork provenance. The original Human Nature study and game illustrations were generated for this project. Vector cleanup, font adaptation, layouts and title motion were authored for the selected identity. The editable wordmark is the source of truth; do not recreate it by typing the name.
